

Whistleblower Protection Information

Protected Disclosures

Current and former HHS employees, applicants for HHS employment, HHS contractors, subcontractors, personal services contractors, grantees, and subgrantees who disclose information to OIG, and other authorized recipients are protected from retaliation under the Whistleblower Protection Act of 1989, 41 U.S.C. § 4712 and Presidential Policy Directive 19 (<https://oig.hhs.govhttps://www.opm.gov/our-inspector-general/whistleblower-protection-information/ppd-19.pdf>) (PPD-19). Additionally, members of the U.S. Public Health Service Commissioned Corps are protected from retaliation for making public disclosures under the Military Whistleblower Protection Act, 10 U.S.C. § 1034 and cannot be restricted from communicating with OIG or a member of Congress. These laws protect whistleblowers who report specific wrongdoing. In order for the report to be considered a protected disclosure, it must meet the following criteria:

1. The disclosure must be based on a reasonable belief that the alleged wrongdoing has occurred. As explained in the chart below, the definition of wrongdoing varies slightly depending upon your place of employment.
2. The disclosure must be made to a person or entity that is authorized to receive it (i.e. authorized recipients). Employees who reasonably believe they have evidence of wrongdoing are always protected for submitting information to the OIG Hotline. However, as explained in the chart below, there are some limitations as to who is authorized to receive a disclosure depending upon your place of employment.

The chart below outlines the protected disclosures that may be made under Federal whistleblower laws and authorized recipients for those disclosures:
